The Robert Loveman Concert Company

PERSONNEL

Mr. Robert Loveman, Poet-Humorist
Miss Mary Dale Figuers, Violiniste
Miss Lucile Dennis, Soprano

IN announcing the Robert Loveman Concert Company, we wish to assure our patrons that it is an ARTISTIC TRIO in all that the phrase implies. ¶ Mr. Loveman has achieved fame as one of the greatest lyric poets of the age. His readings, sketches and reminiscences make an evening's entertainment of genuine pleasure. ¶ Miss Lucile Dennis is a cultured soprano who has sung her way in the hearts of all music lovers, who have heard her, while Miss Mary Dale Figuers is a violiniste of rare accomplishments. Besides being remarkably gifted, Miss Dennis and Miss Figuers are personally attractive to an unusual degree. ¶ To our patrons, who want a program of jewels in beautiful setting, we commend the Robert Loveman Concert Company.

ALKAHEST LYCEUM SYSTEM

"A poet worthy the name."

—Tribune, Minneapolis

"There is beauty, rhythm, poetry in every line."

—The Bookseller, Chicago

"Robert Loveman has won high rank among American lyric poets."

—Commercial, Buffalo

"Robert Loveman, of Dalton, who was billed at the Grand last night, under the modest title of 'An Evening With Robert Loveman,' charmed and delighted a crowded house literally singing his way into the hearts of his hearers. It was a feast from which none went away save with a gladdened heart and a smile."

—Brunswick (Ga.) News

"In last night's program Mr. Loveman gave a number of his most beautiful poems, making a whimsical little sketch glimpses of his own boyhood—the incidents strung together with jewels of exquisite verse."

—Atlanta Journal

"Mr. Loveman is very effective in his renditions and whether in serious work or in comedy he is quite an artist and last night his work was thoroughly enjoyed. He can go from grave to gay and from lively to serious lines with equal finish and he won for himself added laurels by his delightful interpretations last night."

—Tu-calooosa (Ala.) Times

"From the moment the entertainment commenced until the last promise of the program had been concluded there was not a dull moment in its rendition."

Mr. Loveman was at his best and he threw his heart and soul into the interpretation of his own work as well as the selections from Riley and other distinguished poets. His reminiscences were related in such a way that the crowd eagerly followed him from his boyhood days to his trip across the waters."

—West Point (Ga.) News

"The entertainment last Thursday evening by the popular Georgia poet, Robert Loveman, under the auspices of the Woman's Club, was an inspiration to all who heard him. His notably fine verses, delivered in a pleasing way, thrilled his audience from start to finish."

—Gaasden (Ala.) News

"Loveman, a brother to Omar."

—Republic, St. Louis

Miss Lucile Dennis, Soprano

Miss Lucile Dennis was educated at Wesleyan Female College, Macon, Ga., in both the literary and musical departments. So remarkable was her talent for vocal music and so marvelous her progress that she completed the five-years' course in the short span of two years. She then took vocal music and voice culture at the famous Brenau Conservatory at Gainesville, Ga. She afterwards studied for two years in New York, under the greatest vocal masters of that city. During her studies in the metropolis, she was engaged as soloist at the Metropolitan Temple in all their concert work. Her home is in Atlanta, where she is a musical favorite.

Columbia Herald

"No success however triumphant which the future has in store for her will surprise her friends. She has as the Scotch would say, the gift, and the artist's passion and a wonderfully growing power. It is not her technique, her tone alone that pleases most, but that giving forth of self that is more than expression, it is inspiration—In her Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso of Saint Saens we are reminded of the Irish lover's remark to his sweetheart—'You remind us of heaven and you make it unnecessary.'"
